SITE SANTA FE EIGHTH INTERNATIONAL BIENNIAL THE DISSOLVE

June 20, 2010 - January 2, 2011
Sarah Lewis & Daniel Belasco, Curators
Adjaye Associates, Exhibition Designer

It is the mission of SITE's International Biennial to identify, distill, and present a new quality in the art of its time. The Eighth International Biennial, The Dissolve, surveys a striking creative development found in contemporary art. Emerging and established artists working in many mediums, from painting and sculpture to film and mixed-media installation, have mined techniques of early animation and moving image technologies to create a hybrid practice where the handmade meets the high-tech. This desire to animate the work of art—to bring it to life—defines the spirit of the Biennial. Its title, The Dissolve, describes the essential quality of this new sensibility merging with the old. The Biennial runs from June 20, 2010 through January 2, 2011.

Biennial Artists
Robert Breer, Paul Chan, Martha Colburn, Thomas Demand, Brent Green, George Griffin, Ezra Johnson, Bill T. Jones & OpenEnded Group, William Kentridge, Avish Khebrehzadeh, Laleh Khorramian, Maria Lassnig, Jennifer & Kevin McCoy, Joshua Mosley, Oscar Muñoz, Jacco Olivier, Raymond Pettibon, Robert Pruitt, Christine Rebet, Mary Reid Kelley, Robin Rhode, Hiraki Sawa, Berni Searle, Cindy Sherman, Federico Solmi, Kara Walker, with historical works by Edison Manufacturing Company, Fleischer Studios, Lotte Reiniger, and Dziga Vertov.

The exhibition gathers over 25 works of recent art to show the full extent of this practice, displaying them in juxtaposition with historical animations, some dating back to the early twentieth century. Hiraki Sawa, for example, uses the model of the flip book as the template for the animation of his video. The vaudevillian lightning sketch and the stop motion animation technique of early Edison Manufacturing Company films appear as a compelling analogy to works by Oscar Muñoz and Robin Rhode. Shadow puppetry films, popularized by Lotte Reiniger’s 1926 film, the Adventures of Prince Achmed, offer Kara Walker’s silhouette technique a powerful historical antecedent. In so doing, this Biennial will look at contemporary art developments through a bifocal lens, with an eye to both cultural history connected to the evolution of the moving image, as well as to that of contemporary art.

The exhibition design, executed through a commission by renowned architect David Adjaye of Adjaye Associates, references the historical evolution of the viewing environment—from the intimate view offered by the nickelodeon to the arena-like communal interior of Cinerama, and back to the personal mode in the 21st century offered through digital platforms. The scale of presentation and the range of materials vary greatly, yet one element remains constant: the remixing and recombining of the familiar and the strange to revitalize old media, creating compelling new stories that probe social histories and personal narratives.
Bill T. Jones and OpenEnded Group

SITE Santa Fe is pleased to announce the commissioning of Bill T. Jones/Arnie Zane Dance Company and OpenEnded Group to create a new work, After Ghostcatching, for its Eighth International Biennial exhibition. This tenth anniversary re-invention of the acclaimed virtual dance installation Ghostcatching (1999) employs 3-D graphics for an even more immersive experience of the original, which The Village Voice has called “…spectral, fluid and incredibly accomplished, a landmark in the computerized rendering of the human form.” For the opening weekend celebration, the Company performs on Saturday, June 19 at the Lensic Performing Arts Center in Santa Fe, where it will also present the premiere theatrical screening of After Ghostcatching.

After Ghostcatching is a virtual dance for stereoscopic display. OpenEnded Group (Marc Downie, Shelley Eshkar, and Paul Kaiser) re-imagines Ghostcatching, a seamless integration of visual art, dance and technology that transforms Bill T. Jones’ distinctive movement into an animated drawing through the use of motion-capture technique. Taking advantage of the evolution of 3-D and refinements in projection methods, After Ghostcatching enhances the original version with the latest cutting-edge technology to further play with perceptions of Jones’ dancing figure. Now, as viewers don 3-D glasses, they experience the virtual movement in real depth.

Another artist commissioned to make a new work for the Biennial is Mary Reid Kelley. Her work is described by the Los Angeles Times as “…Propelled by Kelley’s skillful, double-tongued speech, riddled with puns, suggestive homonyms and clichés, the videos are bizarre, thoroughly engrossing tableaux,” and her new work for the Biennial, You Make Me Illiad, promises to deliver similar pleasures.

The exhibition also features new works by Avish Khebrehzadeh, Laleh Khorramian, and Federico Solmi.

Catalogue

The exhibition is accompanied by a fully illustrated catalogue containing an introduction by SITE Phillips Director, Laura Steward; a preface by Williams College Museum of Art curator, Nancy Mowll Mathews on the return of moving image to the museum gallery; the exhibition essay, co-authored by curators Sarah Lewis and Daniel Belasco; full page color spreads for each of the 26 contemporary artists or artists groups in the exhibition; edited transcripts of an artist roundtable held prior to the Biennial; a timeline of innovation in over a century of animation; and the exhibition checklist. Designed by Skolkin + Chickey, the catalogue is 212 pages in hardcover, and measures 11.25 x 9.25 inches. The retail price is $50 and it is available at SITE Santa Fe, and distributed by Distributed Art Publishers (DAP).

Website

thedissolve.net is the URL for the newly created website devoted to the Biennial, which includes information on the exhibition, event calendar, related programs, and project support. Perhaps the highlight of the site is the ability of website visitors to view clips of works in the exhibition, to prepare for their visit, and to review post-visit. In the digital and youtube era, SITE aims to make the Biennial content as accessible as possible. To our knowledge, this website marks the first time so much actual artistic content will be posted online and viewable virtually by audiences, while the exhibition is on view to the public.

SITE also is organizing a lively roster of public programs, lectures, and performances to com-implement the Biennial exhibition, including performances by artists Martha Colburn, Jennifer & Kevin McCoy, and a talk by author and critic Jerry Saltz, among others. A complete calendar is attached.

Funding
The exhibition is made possible in part through generous support from the National Endowment for the Arts, The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts, The Burnett Foundation, Agnes Gund, Jeanne & Michael L. Klein, Toby Devan Lewis, Marlene Nathan Meyerson, The Millstream Fund, The Mondriaan Foundation, the SITE Santa Fe Board of Directors, and many other generous donors.

Opening Weekend Events
From Friday, June 18 – Sunday, June 20, 2010, SITE will host a gala opening weekend, featuring a lively array of events. Many of these are fundraising opportunities, and ticket packages are available to the public where indicated in the schedule of events following at the end of this release.

SITE is especially privileged to have Agnes Gund as Honorary Chair; Jeanne & Michael L. Klein as Honorees; Fay & Donald Kirby and Wendy & Peter Trevisani are Gala Weekend Co-Chairs.

Friday kicks off with the Patrons’ Preview with the art world glitterati for the first look at the Biennial; to the Gala Benefit Dinner at the Santa Fe Farmers Market, created by the renowned chef and author, Deborah Madison in collaboration with Marja Custom Catering; followed by the free post-party at Second Street Brewery at the Railyard featuring One Night Stand, a selection of video projections curated by SITE’s Education Department. The community is invited to celebrate the Opening of the Biennial at the Post-party which will feature music by Stephanie Hatfield and Hot Mess. The community is invited to celebrate the Opening of the Biennial at the Post-Party.

On Saturday, Robert Storr will moderate the Biennial Panel Discussion at National Dance Institute, where the curators, exhibition designer, and participating artists Paul Chan, Mary Reid Kelley, and Kara Walker will discuss various perspectives on the exhibition. That evening, SITE is especially delighted to present the world renowned Bill T. Jones/Arnie Zane Dance Company in a special performance featuring a new commission in collaboration with OpenEnded Group at The Lensic Performing Arts Center, at 8 pm. (see separate release).

Finally, on Sunday, SITE hosts the free public opening of the Biennial from 12-5pm, and at the Lensic, The Abstract Dissolve, a video screening of related abstract animations, will conclude the weekend. (see separate release).
